We're continuing our investigation into the music of John Coltrane recorded for Atlantic Records during 1959–61 with a program exploring Trane's preparations for recording his landmark Giant Steps album as documented in Disc 7 of the Atlantic Records box set The Heavyweight Champion. On April 1, 1959 Trane took Cedar Walton (piano), Paul Chambers (bass), and Lex Humphries (drums) into the Atlantic studios to work on a set of his compositions for the album, but he was evidently dissatisfied with the results and ended up recording the Giant Steps album with Tommy Flanagan and Arthur Taylor replacing Walton & Humphries on May 4–5, 1959. The "alternative versions" below are from April 1; the "alternate takes" are from the May sessions.
